This Company, National in character, offers by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium, and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring the best procurable for the public.
The rates of premium being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurer as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the fluctuations and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends, and the misunderstandings which the latter are found to cause the policy-holders.
Several new and attractive tables are now presented, which are offered only to be understood to approved, acceptable to the public, such as its INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY, RETURN PREMIUM POLICY, &c. In the former, the full premium not only secures a life insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent. (10 p. c.) of the sum insured. In the latter, the Company, correct, to refund the premiums paid, with interest, to the insured, at the end of any term of years, in addition to the amount of his policy.
The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives is invited to the unparalleled advantages offered by the National Life Insurance Company.

[illegible] and threats [illegible] those who have studied the [illegible] of the Democratic leaders [illegible] constitutional amendment was [illegible] considered, and fairly adopted [illegible] and no honest man will claim that [illegible] express the will of [illegible] the people. Among other [illegible] was transmitted to Indiana, and [illegible] the Governor of that State recommended [illegible] the legislature for adoption, knowing that [illegible] have voted the people's [illegible] would sanction this, and [illegible] the Democratic members, (w[illegible] more than two-fifths of the [illegible], which by a singular provision [illegible] to defeat a quorum) leave [illegible] seat and go home.

We need [illegible] as [illegible] the intent of this outrage. [illegible] do not deny it, and [illegible] Democratic papers uphold them [illegible] they will continue to re[illegible] is defeated. We need n[illegible] these the people of [illegible] their transactions, for [illegible] undertake to conceal it. [illegible] cannot, but recognize the [illegible] Democratic seditionists to keep the [illegible] in a state of anarchy [illegible] any cost.—They cannot [illegible] more than they have [illegible] to confide in the hollow [illegible] leaders who went about the [illegible] year predicting that all sort [illegible] be enacted if they were [illegible]. They will not fail to remember [illegible] of secession which sought [illegible] country, after failing to g[illegible] read, but yet actuates the [illegible] command the Democratic [illegible]. We must still be vigilant to [illegible].

In comp[illegible] of the Senate some [illegible] between Hon. Lewis Cass and President Buchanan, on the occasion of [illegible] resignation of his [illegible], was transmitted to the [illegible] day. It is simply a confirmation [illegible] well known sentiments of [illegible] to the do nothing policy [illegible] administration relative to affairs in Charleston Harbor. In the letter submitting [illegible] he stated at length that [illegible] his opinion which he had [illegible] the Cabinet; that additional [illegible] to reinforce the forts in the harbor of Charleston, with a view of [illegible] should they be attacked, a [illegible] vessel should likewise be [illegible] if necessary in the [illegible] if it be necessary, to the [illegible]. He also urged the President [illegible] ready to collect the revenue [illegible] Charleston Harbor by having a [illegible] connection with the [illegible] in case of emergency, [illegible] views which were [illegible] with the well known [illegible] of the [illegible] of the Cabinet, Mr. Cass [illegible] to resign and [illegible] without hesitation. The correspondence [illegible] beyond a doubt that had patriotism [illegible] the administration of Buchanan, [illegible] have been saved at small [illegible] blood and treasure.

It does [illegible] Hayti is destined to political [illegible]. Lawless violence reigns every[illegible] unfortunate little State. According [illegible] reports, the revolution, or [illegible] it may be called, is conducted [illegible], and inhuman manner [illegible] the usages and laws of civilized [illegible] and converting what [illegible] into a savage butchery. [illegible] parties seem to vie with each [illegible] massacres. Prisoners of war [illegible] cold blood, women are [illegible] relatives of their opponents, and all conceivable attrocities are [illegible] employed in furtherance of what claim [illegible] the cause of liberty. Considering the [illegible] our Government is bein[illegible] to stop those [illegible] on the ground that the parties put [illegible] the pale of international law and [illegible] be restrained in the name of humanity.

Indian Affairs.—The correspondent of the Boston Advertiser thinks the Indian committee of the Senate will report against the Stuart and Ward scheme for dealing with the Indian question. They have no objection to the appointment of a commission of five or seven [illegible] for advisory purposes, but [illegible] the wisdom or propriety of putting $[illegible],000,000 into their hands as was proposed. The probabilities seem to be that some member of the Senate may on his own responsibility move the plan in that body as an amendment to the Indian bill when it comes up for consideration. The committee will report a large number of amendments to that bill, involving over two million dollars, the greater part of which is for carrying out the treaties made by Gen. Sherman's peace commission. The House rejected these amendments at the last session, and will probably do so again; so that the points at issue may be settled in a conference committee.

[illegible] from [illegible] to the United States as at present. It is estimated that as many as five hundred persons, most of them young men, are leaving the country every week by way of Montreal. Unfortunately for Canada, the men who have the energy to emigrate are just the men who are most needed in the New Dominion, and the papers are doing all in their power to keep their young men from crossing the line and settling in our republic—[illegible] facts may lead the people to seek commercial salvation in annexation to the United States.

The Maine Farmer of last week in noticing the defeat of the State Police bill [illegible] dicts the statement made that Gov. Chamberlain had a veto prepared, in case the bill had passed the Legislature. The Farmer says: "In reference to the veto [illegible] of Gov. Chamberlain we have [illegible] authority for saying that no such [illegible] had ever been prepared, and no [illegible] had been given that the bill would be vetoed; whether it would have [illegible] or not is best known to Gov. Chamberlain himself."

The Paraguayan Complications.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs met yesterday morning in Washington and began the taking of testimony in the [illegible] Paraguayan difficulties. Ex-Minister Washburn was examined at length. He gave facts in detail of the [illegible] and Masterman imbroglio with Lopez and his own connection therewith, and also a full history of Lopez's outrageous conduct toward the American Legation and other prominent foreigners.—There were no facts devolved however, that have not been stated in the published correspondences. Porter C. Bliss, who has [illegible] been at his home in Cattaraugus county, N. Y., and who suffered great indignities at the hands of Lopez, will be in Washington in a day or two and give his testimony before the committee.

Crime in New York. The New York papers are calling the attention of the people of that city to the curious revelations made by the publication of the criminal statistics for 1868. The whole number of arrests during the year was 4912. Of these only 95 were disposed of in the courts, leaving 4107 cases unaccounted for. Out of [illegible] arrests for murder, only 16 cases got as far as the courts. Out of 13 persons arrested for bigamy, only one was tried, and out of [illegible] cases of arson, only two were tried. [illegible] were 250 arrests of receivers of stolen [illegible] and only three trials. Until the [illegible] and district attorneys do their business better than this, there will be no diminution of crime.

While the Congressional Committee on [illegible] was holding a meeting the other [illegible], an altercation took place between two of its members, Stevenson of Ohio, and [illegible], (Dem.) of Illinois. The latter gentleman struck the former and in return was [illegible] himself, but the contestants were separated before any serious damage was done.

Connecticut Campaign Squibs. The Hartford Post has the champion "Squibbist" [illegible] country. He is just now paying his respects to James F. Babcock, Democratic candidate for Congress from the Hartford district. Babcock was formerly a Republican, but in consideration of certain favors, [illegible] off on to the same track with [illegible], in company with Mr. Dixon. This [illegible] the way the satirist of the Post treats [illegible]:

"The Times says, "Mr. Babcock acts from [illegible] ple." He does that. Just as the fellow "dined off a roast turkey,"—so far off [illegible] could not see it.

The Hartford Times in its biography of Mr. James F. Babcock, says: "He could [illegible] falsify the record of an active political [illegible] thirty years." There never was a [illegible] thing said. Abe Train's got the record in the files of The Palladium and [illegible] let him "falsify it."

Speaking of Mr. Babcock, The Times says, "All parties accord to him honesty of purpose." There's no such Babcock as that, [illegible]. The Times has got hold of the wrong man.

The Times says, Babcock "could not repudiate the doctrine of representation." Of [illegible] not. He's great on representation. Old Representation's maiden aunt Mis-Representation is with him on the stump."

The Reported Concentration of Troops in Texas. We have information from a highly-respectable citizen of Corpus Christi, Texas, of a rumored movement on Mexico.—Our informant says that he is convinced that a movement in that direction will soon be made. Troops are being rapidly concentrated in Texas and it is thought that they are being sent there for the purpose of being in readiness for a movement on the "heroic land" of Mexico. Additional barracks and hospitals are being constructed at Brownsville. Fort Ringold and El Paso and Corpus Christi, it is thought, will be the base of supplies.

Whether the above surmises are correct or not, it is true that troops are rapidly pouring into Texas, and that additional barracks and hospitals are being constructed at the points named.—New Orleans Crescent.

Two gentlemen escaped injury in the recent accident on the Great Western Railroad, in which the sleeping car was tumbled down an embankment. One gave up his berth to a lady, and the other was so drunk the conductor would not allow him in the car. Moral obvious.

HEAR YE AFFLICTED!

PROF. M. FERDENANDEZ, a Regular Physician and Surgeon, and a man of integrity, deems it his duty to warn the peculiarly afflicted against the extortions practiced upon them, cases of which are daily brought to his notice. Dr. F. is remarkable for his low charges and for his speedy cures of any disease of the urine-generative organs. All weakness peculiar to ladies speedily relieved; and you can call or address the Doctor without fear of monstrous charges. It is for the interest of females to consult him, as this is a practice peculiar to France and Spain.

Old chronic cases produced by malpractice of unprincipled men, skilfully removed. Young men addicted to secret habits or suffering from seminal weakness, can call and learn their cure without intimidation. Good accommodations for patients wishing to remain in the city. All consultations free. Dispensatory and Office, corner of Howard and Somerset streets, Boston; entrance 46 Howard street. Address Lock Box 1[illegible], Boston. Office hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. Bangor Savings Bank.

THE next Quarter will commence April 1.

On the first Monday of April, a dividend will be declared of the earnings for the past six months, at the rate of seven per cent. per annum.

The Surplus accumulated by the Bank, and reserved to guard depositors from loss, and the increased value of money, render it tolerably certain that the rate will continue to be paid in the future.

We are glad to see this movement to restore a great national interest, which was well nigh annihilated during the war by foreign nations, which have too long been allowed to profit by its destruction. National pride as well as interest should prompt Congress to enact such measures as will tend to restore the United States to the position she occupied before the war as a maritime power.—[Wash. Chronicle.

THE PAY OF ENLISTED MEN IN THE ARMY. The Secretary of War has sent to the House of Representatives a letter, from which it appears that unless otherwise provided by law the existing rates of pay of enlisted men of the army will cease from and after the 20th of August next, and a return to the rate fixed prior to the late war, which were for privates of cavalry twelve dollars per month and privates of infantry eleven dollars, instead of sixteen dollars per month as now allowed to both of those classes, will be the result. The Paymaster General thinks that the present rates of pay should be allowed until the end of the current enlistment at least, while Gen. Sherman says in a note that he does not believe that Congress wishes to reduce the pay of privates, and it might be well to submit this to Congress, and ask that a joint resolution be passed extending the period one or two years more.

BILLIARDS. Joseph Dion is playing surprisingly in his practice. In two of his latest games, each 1000 points, he averaged 77 and 111, making in one game 562, and in the other, 427. The run of 562 was scored away from the corners, and, to a large extent, it is said, through the medium of a patent shot (?) of the player's own invention. The other patent shot which he had for playing balls in the corner without crotching them and which he had no chance to make use of in his recent match with Foster has been abandoned.

Foster has no patent shot, and yet frequently makes runs of 500 and over. Last Monday night he defeated Goldthwaite, and averaged 60. The game was 300 points, played without push and on a pocket table. On a carom table the same night, he played a game with Maurice Daley, winning by 500 to 1000. The best runs were 284 by Foster and 237 by Daley.

The [illegible] was very pleasing to the audience, who [illegible]

[illegible] evening the entertainment will consist of [illegible] by the Orchestra, Tableaux [illegible] by Mrs. Helen Jackman, Mr. O. Pearson, and the Penobscot Glee Club; and a farce entitled "An Object of Interest." As the programme is of considerable length we would suggest that the performance at all commence as early as possible, so that they may close at an earlier hour than would otherwise be the case. Standing in a crowded hall and waiting till past eight for the curtain to rise is wearisome, and when the effort of waiting is to keep the audience from their homes till near midnight it is vexatious. We are glad to be able to report the Fair to have been thus far a grand success.

—One of our worthy dentists, who in the benevolence of his heart, advertises to perform the simpler operations of dentistry free of charge, to those unable to pay, was visited a few mornings since by one of our oldest inhabitants, who would properly belong to this class of persons, who accosted him with "Doctor, you know I'm a poor old fellow, and you wont charge me nothin' for pulling out a pesky old tooth that has kept me awake all last night, and is mighty bad this morning, will you?" The doctor, forceps in hand, replied, "Oh no, sit down and let me see it. Now, Mr. R., just put your finger on it." The old man placed his finger on his gum, took it out, shook his head, put his finger back and exclaimed—"Now, where on earth has that pesky tooth gone? It was there last night, sartin; dorn it, I suppose I must have swallowed it—thank you, doctor, good morning," and he left, not fully satisfied "what had got that pesky tooth."

—Dixmont, March 22d, on complaint of R. T. Edgerly, chairman of the Selectmen of the town, John Hekell, a lad of 11 years of age, was arrested on a charge of being an idle, worthless person, and brought before L. W. Starbird, Esq., who, upon a proper examination of the case, finding the boy had no home, sentenced him to the Reform School during minority. Constable Hall immediately took the boy to Cape Elizabeth, in accordance with the sentence.

Eis, or Sunday, the sum of $1000 was contributed, and the Easter offering at St. Paul's amounted to $500, with more to come in [illegible].

—The Portland Argus says that the Portland Distillery is soon to be put into operation, and that the establishment will distill from two to three hundred hogsheads of molasses per week into rum.

—The Press says that Monday Mr. Kingman, of the Preble House, Portland, disposed of his lease to Mr. L., wife of the American House. We are told that Mr. L. will take charge of the Preble the last of this week.

—The Reporter says that two young lads, aged nine or twelve years, broke into the toll house, on the Gardiner & Pittston Bridge, last Saturday night, and took all the money therein—several dollars in scrip and coppers. On Monday they visited the office of Mr. Arthur Berry, and carried off a quantity of postage and revenue stamps. They were detected with the stamps in their hands, and were arrested, when they confessed their guilt. They were sentenced to the Reform School.

—A cargo of coal at Eastport, is selling for $7.75 to $8.00 per ton.

—The buildings of the U. S. Asylum at Togus have been completed.

—The Union mourns gloomily because Machias has elected Republican officers, who decline to give the Democrats a chance to [illegible] their peculiarities.

—The Reporter, [illegible] the dummy train from Augusta to Gardiner, ran off the track near Augusta, Thursday night, [illegible] in consequence of [illegible] being misplaced.—The train was stopped just in season to avoid being precipitated down a steep embankment into the river.

—The Houlton Times says that the Trustees of Houlton Academy have resolved to erect a new Academy building on the site of the old one, the coming season. At a recent meeting of the Trustees, the design of a very beautiful edifice, drawn by Mr. Harding, Architect, Portland, was adopted. The building is to be 40 by 65 feet on the ground, with a rear extension 11 by 20 feet, two stories high, surmounted with a French roof and elegant bell tower.

—The Kennebec Journal remarks: "It has been said of our police force, and it is a high compliment to be paid to any body of men, that not a single member of that important branch of our city government is in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage."

PITTSFIELD WATER POWER. The Somerset Reporter, in an account of the water power of Pittsfield, says that town has three powers.—First, "Douglas Ledge," on the west branch of the Sebasticook river; fall fourteen feet in 100 rods, unimproved.

Second, on the same stream, "Hartshorn's Mill"; fall fourteen feet in forty rods; will manufacture 4,000,000 shingles, 2,000,000 long lumber, 10,000 bedstead, grind 100,000 bushels of grain. This is about one-fifth of what all would do if improved. Centre vent wheel.

Third, "Call Rips," on the same stream, seventeen feet in 200 rods.—Unimproved.

Several lakes and ponds, amongst them Moose pond, eight by one miles, are located in Pittsfield. All can be converted into reservoirs. There is plenty of granite in the shape of boulders suitable for building.—Improvement of the power has aided the town materially. Market, Bangor, Lewiston, Portland, by Maine Central Railroad.

Bangor, which is one of the leading lumber markets in the country, is a very appropriate site for a first class saw factory, and such a one is carried on by Gibson, Kimball & Sanford—the Dirigo Saw Works.—They manufacture saws of all kinds, but are now giving special attention to mill gang and circular saws, of which they turn out about 250 per week. They employ 16 hands, at present, but, owing to the rapid increase of their business, are about to make a large increase in their force. Their machinery is driven by a 16 horse-power engine, built by Hinckley & Egery. The saws of their manufacture are in very general use in the lumber mills on the Penobscot, and give perfect satisfaction.—[Bath Times.

The Catholic Council, which is to assemble at Rome in December of the present year, will be a very important gathering, and the questions which will then and there be discussed, will be of great interest and significance to the whole religious world, as well as to the Roman Catholic church. One of the questions which is likely to come up is in regard to the election of a successor to Pope Pius Ninth during the life time of the latter. The object of such a movement is to obviate the danger which might result to the temporal power of the Pope by having an interregnum of any considerable length in the Papal office.

[Translated from the German of Heine.]

Thou artist-king, whose tones
As sweet and pure will fall
Upon the ear of midnight's hour,
As rays of moonlight do.

It seems to me as if
My hands in unison
Playing the lyre, I might
As sweet and true sing with.

ORPHAN MADGE.

(CONCLUDED.)

The voice was as freely loud as that of the sharp on a grasshopper, but clear and sweet as a silver bell, and as Madge started up in astonishment, her eye fell upon the strangest little figure that had ever been her lot to behold. It was that of a little old woman, with a face, for all the world, just like one of those grotesque images that boys carve from hickory nuts, surmounted by an inverted scarlet columbine bell, that, in many a dainty and becoming hood-dress, her shawl, that fell in graceful folds about her tiny figure, was of the white and delicatest spider's web while her dress of gossy green oak leaves, deftly put together, and bearing the impress of dainty one of mind, the fairies' dressmaker—Madame le Devils' Darning Needle—closing all [illegible] dainties and ample train as neatly as that of any fashionable Broadway belle.

The child was so surprised at this apparition that she neglected to return her good manners, and in place of replying to her companion's remark, stared in open-mouthed astonishment at the queer little figure that, apparently, not at all daunted or disconcerted by her silence, proceeded, deliberately to disengage from her belt a golden-handled whip, with which she commenced fanning herself, glancing from time to time with a encouraging smile at the somewhat frightened face before her.

So familiar had the little girl become with the various tenants of these sylvan solitudes that the appearance of this specimen was no, indeed, so remarkable, after all, but the fact was, little Madge was immediately engrossed in regard to object on most learned with and speakers have to agree in [illegible] wish tongue and pen to improve [illegible] the public mind, the fairies are also progression—an age in which everything and everybody are supposed to be travelling with railroad speed on the up-hill road. Be that as it may, when we see the yellow buttercup of the meadow growing portly and proud in the garden borders, its old cognomen forgotten, and dismissed by the name of golden-cup, when even the modest fallwood violet forgets to shrink from sight, but buttons purple cup, sunshine in many a [illegible] or blossoms of the commonest, we suppose, for a moment, that even the nice folk of the forest, can progress [illegible] the general human, and retain their primitive simplicity of habit and speech amid all of this progress-mad haste going on so steadily around them.

But Madge's ideas concerning fairies people had been drawn from the pages of an old tattered [illegible] ordinary tales, that had accidentally [illegible] into her hands, and her own [illegible] day dreams. The only appearance fashionably spoken little old [illegible] different from the picture in her mind, that she sat, silent and [illegible] looking, yet fearing to address [illegible]

But the little lady did not keep [illegible] in relation to speak, as [illegible] eyes upon the child [illegible] she asked, abruptly, but [illegible] of kindly interest

"Well, what is it?"

She smiled—a queer, little, [illegible] ing smile that made her mouth [illegible] network of wrinkles, but [illegible] Blushed, and shook her head [illegible]

"How did you know," she [illegible] that I was unhappy

The dame laughed [illegible]

"I may as well tell you," [illegible] ed in a confidential tone, [illegible] to reassure her timid [illegible]

"There is a young trout [illegible] brook, just below here [illegible] servant fellow, who always [illegible] everybody is about, and [illegible] of mine, he often give me valuable [illegible] of information. Well, to-day, [illegible] taking a call in my wee birch [illegible] with the lily-leaf sails, he came [illegible] ming up along-side. In a ferrit [illegible] and before I could speak, he [illegible] with—'The little girl the one [illegible] yon of, that comes so often to [illegible] she is in trouble, and she [illegible] voice so that my bo[illegible] much soul [illegible] him—I saw tears falling into [illegible] I know they were tears, for I [illegible] and they were too salt for dew-[illegible] though they were rejected [illegible] how I came to know of your [illegible] now you must tell me it' came.

The child hesitated a moment [illegible] she answered, mournfully:

"I am of no use in the world [illegible] neither strength nor skill, [illegible] Think of no one who [illegible] are living soul, and nobody [illegible] mourn for me if I were in my [illegible]

"What is it that you cannot [illegible] dame was gaining [illegible] con[illegible] she replied, unhesitatingly

"Everything. To upon chamois [illegible] yellow cream, nor mould the [illegible] of butter, for my wrists are [illegible] and grew faint and weary [illegible] lightest household tasks. To [illegible] gather the ripe strawberries [illegible] themselves under their broad [illegible] leaves, for my poor dumb [illegible] me to and fro across the field [illegible] every other human being. [illegible] the power to be useful, but [illegible] well out of the world as it is."

The dame made no comment, [illegible] dered in the same manner as [illegible]

"And what can you do?" [illegible]

"Nothing."

The tone was one of utter [illegible] cy.

"Nothing?" and the speaker's [illegible] little face presented an odd mix[illegible] of curiosity and amusement, [illegible] learned nothing in all these [illegible] rambles that would be of use [illegible]

For a moment, the child's [illegible] deepened, but it was again over[illegible] she said, despondingly:

"Nothing that they would care to know. To them the songs of the [illegible] brook is only a careless chatter; [illegible] but to me its voice is ever changing—low and mournful, sometimes shrill when the dark cloud faces look up scowling from its bosom, or gay and careless, when the sunshine kisses it, or the sunbeams [illegible] dimples its bright surface. I know the song that the honey-bee sings to the evening flowers, while he steals from them their richest treasures. I have learned the secret signs of the flowers—[illegible] kens the pass from one to another [illegible]

when the news of the Frost-King's approach is received through their swift-winged courier the Whistle-down. I have listened to the lullaby that the night wind sings to the sleeping flowers, and the louder, wilder strain, to which even the great [illegible] and oaks bend their stately heads to listen. To me all these things are a continual delight, but what else would it be to them?

The [illegible] smiled benignantly, and it [illegible] to her that there was [illegible] a grace and dignity in [illegible] her tones were [illegible] and earnest [illegible] she lifted her hand impressively, as she [illegible]

"My child, [illegible] bestowed upon you a gift [illegible] a rare [illegible] entitled—the gift of poesy."

Madge looked puzzled and bewildered, but the little lady went on

"With this precious gift in your possession, your power for good or evil is almost unlimited. You have no right to enjoy it alone, any more than the glow worm. This is, by a law of my Kingdom, unalterable, with [illegible] if he retains his body inside this torch [illegible] the mass of leaves, [illegible] only, may be benefited by it light. Freely as you have received, freely give to the world these bright fancies that have illumined your own [illegible]

"Your hand may be weak to [illegible] for, but it may wield a pen of might and beauty. If you have neither gold nor [illegible] to bestow upon your fellow men, you [illegible] the gift of song, that [illegible] to many a darkened path, and strength and courage to many a fainting heart. Be true, be honest, be faithful, and you cannot fail of your reward."

She paused for a moment, looking earnestly into the bewildered face of the young auditor, then dropping a courtesy, she added in a graver tone:

"And now, my love, I must be going, for I gave a [illegible] Zephyrina [illegible] all the columbine bells ringing for a [illegible] in honor of [illegible]

Madge [illegible] to her feet, rubbing her eyes, and [illegible] her tongue to [illegible] the [illegible] fully awake. Was the [illegible] columbine bell [illegible] up on her calf [illegible] Surely all—it was only the [illegible] morning, she [illegible] collected [illegible] upon to [illegible]

Madge [illegible] she looked [illegible] the [illegible] crowded [illegible] mouth, the wonderful [illegible] lifted [illegible] heart, and [illegible] a [illegible] in the [illegible] and hope [illegible] spoken [illegible] Acknowledged [illegible] warm and [illegible] the hidden [illegible] that music [illegible] send [illegible] but, ah! [illegible] soon [illegible] glad [illegible] the [illegible] ment

Years have passed since then, and the [illegible] made of Madge Whipple is known, and [illegible] honor, far and near, by the [illegible] well as [illegible] of her [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
